

Fostering an Environment of Invigorating Multiculturalism, Globalism, Diversity and Inclusion

Video 4: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=mgyzAjBxTB4&feature=youtu.be>

Scene 1: Amir Baratijourabi, graduate student is speaking. (I really love Kansas City because the people in Kansas City are so welcoming of the people from other countries...)

Scene 2: Female and male playing the violin. (and people from actually diverse backgrounds.)

Scene 3: Hadeir Shahin, Senior Enrollment Advisor, International Student Affairs Office is speaking. (I think embracing diversity is very important not only on campus but in the KC community as well. I feel like increasing the opportunities of interaction between...)

Scene 4: Two female students laugh and cheer on the Roos at a soccer game at Durwood Stadium. (domestic students and international students..)

Scene 5: Hadeir Shahin is speaking (will definitely help international students feel more welcomed...)

Scene 6: Three female students on laptops. (and improve their educational experience in general at UMKC.)

Scene 7: Students playing ping pong. (According to the campus climate study research that...)

Scene 8: Kari Jo Freudigmann, Assistant Director, LGBTQIA Programs and Services. (UMKC had a couple years ago, one of the number one reasons for students to have intend to leave is lack of sense of belonging...)

Scene 9: Female student laughing. (So if we can increase some of that inclusion on campus...)

Scene 10: Kari Jo Freudigmann, is speaking. (we can raise that retention rate and decrease that lack of sense of belonging that students are feeling which will hopefully make them want to hang out here at UMKC more.

Scene 11: Jannette Berkley-Patton, Associate Professor of Biomedical/Health Informatics, director, UMKC Health Equity Institute is speaking. (So the UMKC health equity Institute is focused on four primary things. The first one being collaboration the second one being serving the greater Kansas City community and then gathering information to inform on a number of different issues and then lastly to innovate. I'd like to say that the doors of the university are open you know...)

Scene 12: People at church. (so that communities members begin to feel comfortable in our space and know that they're contributing in a really meaningful way to making change that's...)

Scene 13: Jannette Berkley-Patton is speaking. (of importance to them and...)

Scene 14: Bird's-eye view of building. (so I think in doing that process...)

Scene 15: Students in class. (we'll have an incredible opportunity to really explore...)

Scene 16: Five females walking on campus. (..what multiculturalism looks like.)

Scene 17: Jennifer Rangel, freshman, class of 2022 is speaking. (I think a lot of the professors here at UMKC encourage different ideas and viewpoints on a lot of different subjects and topics I definitely felt welcome and I felt like I belonged here.
